

SUMMARY

Introduction . . . . .	V
Bibliography . . . . .	IX
Summary . . . . .	XIX

CHAPTER I.

Administration of Rome.

ARTICLE I. — Restoration of Order.

Crimes in Rome at the accession of Alexander VI . . . . .	1
Punishment did not stop all criminals . . . . .	2
The Roman barons infest the City and its neighborhood . . . . .	3
Never did Rome revolt against Alexander VI . . . . .	3
The Pope restores security by promoting justice . . . . .	4
Prisons visited by papal commissaries . . . . .	5
The Pope gives public audiences every Tuesday . . . . .	6
And acts as a judge . . . . .	7
Constabulary and Justices of the peace . . . . .	8
The Pope forbids to carry weapons . . . . .	8

ARTICLE II. — The Romans specially attended to.

Revision of the municipal statutes . . . . .	9
The poor excused from pleading at higher tribunals . . . . .	10
Some interesting new statutes . . . . .	10
Monthly assemblies of the magistrates . . . . .	14
The Romans free under the Popes . . . . .	15
Rome well supplied with food . . . . .	16
Scarcity on two occasions relieved by Alexander VI . . . . .	16
The Pope prompt to pay teachers, laborers and soldiers . . . . .	18

CHAPTER II.

Government of the provinces.

ARTICLE I. — Assisi ruined by factions and rebuilt.

Alexander VI takes care of his provinces . . . . .	19
In his direct domain he names the governors, the people elect all other officials . . . . .	20

Self-governing cities subject to rival factions . . . . .	20
Slaughter and devastation in Assisi. . . . .	21
Criminals of Assisi punished . . . . .	22
Bl. Bernardino of Feltre procures a reconciliation . . . . .	24
The Pope interferes to make a lasting peace . . . . .	24
Cruelty is renewed times and again . . . . .	24
Assisi quieted by direct papal government . . . . .	26
Assisi rebuilt . . . . .	27

ARTICLE II. — Factions in other cities.

Other cities fare no better, in spite of papal orders . . . . .	28
Orvieto quietly governed by Cesar de Borgia. . . . .	28
Cruelties committed in Tivoli, Viterbo, etc. . . . .	29
Peace restored in Viterbo by Gonsalvo and the Pope . . . . .	31
Order restored in Amelia, Terni and Cesi . . . . .	32
Foligno saved, peace restored in Civit� Castellana . . . . .	33
Fano surrenders its independence to obtain peace . . . . .	33
The Pope an umpire of Perugia . . . . .	33
Altobello Chiaravalle of Todi, a ferocious bandit . . . . .	34
Democratic administration of Recanati confirmed . . . . .	35
The Pope admits several places to his direct government . . . . .	36
Rome flooded in 1495 . . . . .	39

ARTICLE III. — Brigandage opposed, prosperity fostered.

Papal fleet against pirates . . . . .	43
Papal constabulary in several places . . . . .	44
Measures against Corsican marauders . . . . .	45
Intended institution of the Spanish Hermandad. . . . .	47
Agriculture, commerce and mining favored . . . . .	49
The Pope helps Corneto to sell its cereals . . . . .	50
Alexander VI establishes a postal department . . . . .	51

ARTICLE IV. — Papal revenues from the Pontifical States.

Sources of revenue, the census from vassals included . . . . .	52
Revenues of other Italian princes . . . . .	53
No taxes, only road toll and duties on sales . . . . .	54

ARTICLE V. — Excursions of Alexander VI.

A protracted visit in the Patrimony . . . . .	56
The Pope's journeys to Vicovaro, Viterbo, Orvieto and Perugia, to Ostia, Nepi and Civit� Castellana . . . . .	59
The Pope received well, especially on his returns to Rome . . . . .	60

CHAPTER III.

Ferdinand of Naples opposes Alexander VI.

ARTICLE I. — Unjust sale of Cervetri, etc.

Cervetri, etc. bought by Virginio Orsini in spite of the Pope . . . . .	63
The Pope complains in vain to the king of Naples . . . . .	64
Ferdinand ready for war against the Pope . . . . .	65
Ludovico the Moro offers troops and an alliance to the Pope . . . . .	65
Ferdinand promises to abide by judicial decision . . . . .	66
The Pope, finally undeceived, allies with Venice and Milan . . . . .	67
The Pope opposed to the French conquest of Naples . . . . .	69
Ferdinand prepares for war and so do the Pope and his col- leagues . . . . .	69
Ferdinand seeks peace and offers an accord about Cervetri . . . . .	70
The Pope refuses him a family alliance . . . . .	71

ARTICLE II. — First calumnies against Alexander VI.

Ferdinand makes a campaign of slander against the Pope . . . . .	71
The Pope defended by Lopez, bishop of Perugia . . . . .	76
Ferdinand tries to deceive, and thanks, the Pope . . . . .	77
Hostile act of the obeisance of the Spanish kings . . . . .	77

ARTICLE III. — Settlement of the difficulties in regard to Cervetri.

Ferdinand submits from fear of the French . . . . .	78
Negotiations of Jofre de Borgia's marriage with Sancia of Aragon. . . . .	79
Settlement with Virginio Orsini . . . . .	80
Cervetri, etc. sold to Virg. Orsini for 30,000 ducats . . . . .	81
Joy of Ferdinand of Naples, on this occasion . . . . .	83
The Pope opposes the French invasion of Naples . . . . .	83
Ferdinand's exactions and complaints against the Pope . . . . .	84
Death of Ferdinand and accession of Alfonso II . . . . .	85

CHAPTER IV.

Charles VIII intends to conquer Naples.

ARTICLE I. — Instigators of the design.

Ludovico the Moro long since allied with France against Naples . . . . .	87
Ludovico incites Charles VIII to conquer Naples . . . . .	88

Briçonnet, after seeing the Pope, almost defeats the project . . . . .	89
The project decided through cardinal della Rovere . . . . .	90

ARTICLE II. — Alexander VI did not call Charles VIII into Italy.

The Pope accused of calling the French king into Italy . . . . .	90
Deceit of Guicciardini refuted by Bembo . . . . .	92
Other accusers refuted . . . . .	92
Not a document to mention any papal invitation . . . . .	96
Charles VIII never accused the Pope of duplicity . . . . .	97
Ferdinand of Naples did not mind the report . . . . .	98
A confession of Ludovico the Moro . . . . .	98
The Pope's invitation was to war against the Turks . . . . .	99
The Pope refuses to Charles VIII the investiture of Naples . . . . .	100
The Pope offers to hear the claims of Charles VIII . . . . .	102
His letter to dissuade the French king . . . . .	102
Alfonso II concludes a contract with Alexander VI . . . . .	104
Cardinal Giovanni de Borgia crowns Alfonso II . . . . .	107
A French embassy threatens the Pope with a conciliabulum and deposition . . . . .	108

ARTICLE III. — Alexander VI the only Italian prince who tries to save Italy from the French invasion.

The French ambassadors corrupt many papal vassals . . . . .	109
Nearly all Italy sides with the invader . . . . .	109
Venice to remain neutral . . . . .	112
The Pope calls for help on Germany and Spain . . . . .	113
Maximilian tries to meet Charles VIII . . . . .	114
The king of Spain sends an envoy to France . . . . .	114
Alexander VI and Alfonso II meet at Vicovaro . . . . .	115
Their plans of resistance to the French . . . . .	116

ARTICLE IV. — The Pope slandered as an ally of the Turks.

Giovanni della Rovere robs of treasure and of papers a papal and a Turkish envoy . . . . .	118
He falsifies and publishes the papers . . . . .	119
Pretended instructions to the papal envoy, Buzardo . . . . .	119
Four letters of Bajazet composed by della Rovere . . . . .	120
There is no trace of the original documents . . . . .	120
Contemporaries, even Charles VIII, ignore those letters . . . . .	121
Later French writers improve on those forgeries . . . . .	122
Opinion of Pastor and of German protestants . . . . .	123

Proofs of the forgery of those letters . . . . .	123
The Pope objects to the calumny of della Rovere . . . . .	125
Forgery apparent from the contents and the style . . . . .	126

CHAPTER V.

Invasion of Italy by Charles VIII.

ARTICLE I. — Invasion of Milan, Romagna and Florence.

Charles VIII enters the duchy of Milan . . . . .	131
He visits Galeazzo Sforza, the dying duke, in Pavia . . . . .	132
In Piacenza he refuses admission to cardinal de Borgia . . . . .	132
The papal captain leaves the duke of Calabria in Romagna . . . . .	133
To defend Rome against the rebel barons, who capture Ostia and ravage the neighborhood . . . . .	134
The duke of Calabria retires before the French . . . . .	135
Piero de' Medici surrenders the Florentine fortresses . . . . .	136
Cardinal legate Piccolomini is refused in Lucca . . . . .	137
The French enter and plunder Florence . . . . .	138
Deceiving Encyclical of Charles VIII . . . . .	138
His acts suspected by all . . . . .	140
Cardinal legate Pérault untrue to the Pope . . . . .	140
The King taxes Florence heavily and departs . . . . .	141

ARTICLE II. — Invasion of the Pontifical States.

Charles VIII enters upon papal territory . . . . .	142
His unpaid soldiers plunder everywhere . . . . .	143
Capture and liberation of Adriana del Milá, of Julia Farnese and her sister Hieronyma . . . . .	144
Embassy of the Pope reciprocated by one of Charles VIII . . . . .	144
Spain, Milan and Venice provoked against Charles VIII . . . . .	145
Maximilian promotes a league against him . . . . .	146
The Pope prepares the City for defence . . . . .	147
Cardinal Sanseverino, last legate to Charles VIII . . . . .	148
The Orsini surrender to the French . . . . .	148
The Pope contemplates fleeing from Rome . . . . .	149

ARTICLE III. — Zizim, the Turkish prince.

Zizim guarded by the Knights of Rhodes . . . . .	151
Zizim transferred to France . . . . .	152
Confided to Innocent VIII and to Alexander VI . . . . .	153

ARTICLE IV. — Charles VIII enters Rome.

The Pope resolves to remain in Rome . . . . .	156
Charles VIII's last embassy to the Pope . . . . .	156
The Pope compelled to grant the King's demands . . . . .	156
The duke of Calabria leaves Rome with his troops . . . . .	157
The duke's offer to the Pope on this occasion . . . . .	159
The Pope admits the King in Rome on certain conditions . . . . .	160
He sends a deputation to welcome the King . . . . .	161
Charles VIII enters Rome . . . . .	162

ARTICLE V. — Behavior of the French in Rome.

Crimes committed by the French . . . . .	163
Briçonnet favorable to the Pope . . . . .	167
A few cardinals hostile to the Pope . . . . .	168
Charles VIII borrows money and silverware . . . . .	168
Alexander VI continues to assist at divine offices . . . . .	169
Four cardinals sent to defend the Pope before Charles VIII . . . . .	169
Demands of the King refused by the Pope . . . . .	170
The Pope flees to the castle of Sant' Angelo . . . . .	171
Charles VIII threatens to bombard the castle . . . . .	172

ARTICLE VI. — The Pope is compelled to submit to the King.

Compulsory treaty between the Pope and the King . . . . .	173
Charles VIII soon violates the treaty observed by the Pope . . . . .	176
Charles VIII meets Alexander VI at the Vatican . . . . .	177
The King performs the act of obeisance . . . . .	178
The Pope pontificates before the King who serves him . . . . .	180
Zizim is handed to Charles VIII . . . . .	181
Charles VIII leaves Rome with cardinal Cesar de Borgia . . . . .	181

CHAPTER VI.

Charles VIII in the kingdom of Naples.

ARTICLE I. — Bloody progress to Naples.

King Alfonso abdicates and retires to Sicily . . . . .	183
The envoy of Spain protests in Velletri . . . . .	183
Cesar de Borgia escapes from Velletri . . . . .	184
Monte Fortino and Monte San Giovanni burnt down and their inhabitants massacred by the French . . . . .	186
Unopposed, the French proceed to Naples . . . . .	187
Ferdinand II abandoned, Charles VIII enters Naples . . . . .	188

ARTICLE II. — Did the Pope poison Zizim?

Death of Zizim in Naples . . . . .	188
The Pope accused of having poisoned Zizim . . . . .	189
The accusation refuted . . . . .	193
Zizim died a natural death . . . . .	195

ARTICLE III. — Behavior of Charles VIII and of his soldiers in Naples.

Indolent Charles VIII enjoys himself in Naples . . . . .	196
The French soldiers given to rapacity and lust . . . . .	197
Charles VIII forgets his expedition against the Turks . . . . .	198
Charles' expedition was useful to the Turks . . . . .	199
The Turks massacre Albanians excited to revolt . . . . .	200
The Pope refuses to crown Charles VIII king of Naples . . . . .	201
Charles VIII crowns himself and Pontano is the orator . . . . .	202
Charles VIII leaves Naples for France . . . . .	202

ARTICLE IV. — The holy league against the French.

Ferdinand of Spain originates the holy league . . . . .	203
Maximilian promotes the holy league . . . . .	204
Ludovico the Moro proposes a league with the Pope and Venice . . . . .	206
Venice alarmed at the French conquests, wants a league . . . . .	207
The holy league signed at last . . . . .	209
Object and articles of the holy league . . . . .	210
Charles VIII apprised of the conclusion of the holy league . . . . .	211

CHAPTER VII.

Return of Charles VIII to France.

ARTICLE I. — Alexander VI refuses to meet Charles VIII.

The Pope refuses the entry of Rome to the King . . . . .	213
The Pope, prepared to oppose Charles VIII, receives no help . . . . .	214
The Pope is to leave Rome notwithstanding Charles' promises . . . . .	214
The Pope agrees to meet the King at some other place . . . . .	216
Alexander VI departs for Orvieto . . . . .	218
The King leaves Naples, pillages Ferentino and reenters Rome . . . . .	219
The French misbehave in Rome less than before . . . . .	219
Charles VIII leaves Rome and requests the Pope to meet him . . . . .	220
The Pope flees to Perugia . . . . .	220

The Pope comforted by a letter from the Roman people. . . . .	221
Charles VIII ravages Toscanella and other places. . . . .	223
Charles VIII continues his way and his massacres . . . . .	223
The Pope returns to Rome . . . . .	225

ARTICLE II. — Charles VIII reaches France, where he remains.

Battle of Fornovo . . . . .	226
Battle indecisive. Charles VIII reaches France . . . . .	226
Ludovico the Moro treacherously treats with Charles VIII . . . . .	227
The Pope threatens the King with excommunication, if he should continue his war in Italy . . . . .	229
Effects of the papal bull . . . . .	230
The Pope orders the Swiss to withdraw from the French . . . . .	232

ARTICLE III. — The king of Naples restored by Spain.

The Pope approves Spain making war on France . . . . .	233
Ferdinand of Spain treacherously treats with the French . . . . .	234
The German diet and the archbishop of Mainz prevent Maximilian from helping the holy league. . . . .	234
Ridiculous descent of Maximilian into Italy . . . . .	235
Savonarola and Florence oppose the designs of the Pope . . . . .	236
Ferdinand II recovers Naples . . . . .	236
The Pope helps the Kings of Naples with men and money. . . . .	237
The Vitelli and Orsini fight their suzerain, the Pope . . . . .	239
The French surrender at Attella and perish near Naples. . . . .	240
England joins the holy league . . . . .	241
Ferdinand II of Naples and Charles VIII die . . . . .	242

CHAPTER VIII.

Conquests of Louis XII in Italy.

ARTICLE I. — His friendship towards Cesar de Borgia.

The Pope sends to congratulate king Louis XII . . . . .	245
Louis XII desires the good will of the Pope . . . . .	246
He names Cesar de Borgia duke of Valentinois . . . . .	247
He wants Cesar in France. . . . .	247
Naples and Spain oppose the journey of Cesar to France . . . . .	248
Cesar goes to France . . . . .	249
Charlotte of Naples refuses to marry Cesar . . . . .	250
Cesar marries Charlotte d'Albret . . . . .	251
Cesar agrees with Louis XII and lends him money . . . . .	252
Cesar returns to Rome . . . . .	252

ARTICLE II. — Louis XII conquers the duchy of Milan.

Louis XII ally of Venice against Ludovico the Moro . . . . .	253
The Pope was no member of this alliance . . . . .	254
The Pope opposed to the French conquest of Milan . . . . .	256
Alexander VI turns against Ludovico, when hearing of his alliance with the Turks . . . . .	256
Ludovico flees from Milan, returns and is made a prisoner. . . . .	257

ARTICLE III. — France and Spain divide and conquer the kingdom of Naples.

Alexander VI at first defends Frederic of Naples. . . . .	258
King Frederic allies with the Turks . . . . .	259
Ferdinand of Spain refuses to help Frederic and lays claim on Naples . . . . .	260
France and Spain divide Naples. Treaty of Granada . . . . .	261
A papal bull confirms the treaty of Granada . . . . .	262
Cesar de Borgia joins the French against Naples . . . . .	264
Sack of Capua . . . . .	264
Guicciardini slanders Cesar de Borgia on this occasion . . . . .	265
King Frederic accepts a county in France . . . . .	265
Bargain of the Pope with Louis XII about "nepveux et parens" . . . . .	266
The French attacked and defeated by the Spaniards. . . . .	267

CHAPTER IX.

War on some Roman barons.

ARTICLE I. — Alexander VI at first compelled to tolerate the noblemen of his States.

Punishment of rebel vassals, the cause of slander . . . . .	269
The Roman barons war among themselves or combine against the Pope . . . . .	270
The noblemen of the Pontifical States were criminals . . . . .	272
Pitiable condition of their people . . . . .	273
The Pope's vassals refuse him the yearly tribute . . . . .	274
Alexander VI at first obliged to tolerate . . . . .	275
Grants made to barons and noblemen . . . . .	275
The Pope's generosity to Giovanni della Rovere . . . . .	277
The Pope employs the nobles as condottieri . . . . .	277
He wants justice done to all, princes and people . . . . .	279

ARTICLE II. — First war on the Orsini.

Reasons to attack the Orsini . . . . .	281
The Orsini excommunicated . . . . .	282
Virginio Orsini a prisoner in Naples . . . . .	282
The Pope commences war on the Orsini . . . . .	285
He loses the battle of Suriano, but dictates the conditions of peace . . . . .	285
The Orsini murder Giovanni de Borgia . . . . .	287
The Orsini and the Borgia make peace . . . . .	288

ARTICLE III. — Punishment of the Gaetani.

The Gaetani deprived of their possessions . . . . .	290
Giacomo Gaetani dies in prison . . . . .	292

CHAPTER X.

First wars in Romagna.

ARTICLE I. — Capture of Imola and Forli from Catherine Sforza.

The feudal lords often admonished to pay their census . . . . .	295
Catherine Sforza makes objections . . . . .	296
Alexander VI prepares an army, aided by Louis XII . . . . .	297
Cesar de Borgia to attack Catherine Sforza . . . . .	299
Catherine Sforza, a tyrant . . . . .	299
She attempts upon the life of Alexander VI . . . . .	300
Cesar captures Imola . . . . .	302
Cesar moves on Forli and takes other towns . . . . .	303
He enters Forli and captures the citadel . . . . .	303
Cesar marches on Pesaro . . . . .	304

ARTICLE II. — Punishment of Catherine Sforza.

Suddenly deprived of his French help, Cesar goes to Rome with Catherine Sforza, a prisoner . . . . .	305
Granted her liberty, Catherine retires to Florence . . . . .	305
Cesar de Borgia made duke of Imola and Forli . . . . .	306

ARTICLE III. — Capture of Pesaro from Giovanni Sforza.

Cesar appointed Captain General and Standard-bearer of the Church . . . . .	307
--	-----

New expedition into Romagna, prepared in spite of Venice . . . . .	307
Louis XII helps Cesar again . . . . .	308
Giovanni Sforza flees from Pesaro . . . . .	309

ARTICLE IV. — Cesar takes Rimini from the Malatesta . 311

ARTICLE V. — Difficult capture of Faenza from the Manfredi.

Astore Manfredi and his brother sent to Rome . . . . .	316
Their mysterious tragical death . . . . .	316
Cesar de Borgia named duke of Romagna . . . . .	318

ARTICLE VI. — Cesar intended to expel the Bentivoglios from Bologna, makes a treaty with them . . 318ARTICLE VII. — Cesar's incursion into the territory of Florence.

Cesar makes an accord with Florence . . . . .	321
The Orsini and Vitelli devastate Tuscany . . . . .	322

ARTICLE VIII. — Cesar goes against Jacopo d'Appiano, lord of Piombino . . . . . 323

Cesar leaves Piombino to go with the French against Naples. . . . .	323
Piombino surrenders during Cesar's absence . . . . .	324

CHAPTER XI.

Punishment of the Colonna and Savelli, etc. barons.

The Colonna and Savelli fighting for Naples, must surrender their States to the Pope . . . . .	325
Their cities readily submit to the papal government . . . . .	325
Marino is, however, destroyed . . . . .	326
Misdeeds of the Colonna and of the Savelli . . . . .	328
Cardinal Colonna loses the abbey of Subiaco . . . . .	330
The Pope expels also the accomplices of the barons . . . . .	331
Alexander VI's kindness towards some of the barons . . . . .	331

CHAPTER XII.

Capture of Urbino and of Camerino.

ARTICLE I. — Papal design against Camerino.

Julius Varano, lord of Camerino, pays no census . . . . .	333
Varano, condemned and pardoned, grows worse . . . . .	334
Varano excommunicated and deprived of his possessions . . . . .	336
The Pope and Varano prepare for war . . . . .	336
Vitellozzo Vitelli and Gianpaolo Baglione take Arezzo . . . . .	337
Cesar de Borgia is offered and refuses Pisa . . . . .	338
Cesar leaves Rome, sends a vanguard to Camerino . . . . .	338

ARTICLE II. — Capture of the duchy of Urbino.

Treachery of the duke of Urbino . . . . .	339
Some writers defend the guilty Guidobaldo di Montefeltro . . . . .	340
Cesar attacks the duchy of Urbino . . . . .	342
Guidobaldo flees to Mantua and Venice . . . . .	343
The whole duchy surrenders in three days . . . . .	344

ARTICLE III. — Misunderstanding with Florence.

The Pope orders restitution of cities taken by Vitelli . . . . .	345
Florence deludes Cesar de Borgia . . . . .	346

ARTICLE IV. — Camerino captured.

Papal troops take the suburb of Camerino . . . . .	348
Orsini, Cesar's lieutenant, received by the Camertines . . . . .	348
The Camertines deliver Julius Varano and his sons into Cesar's power . . . . .	349
Varano and sons imprisoned and put to death . . . . .	350

CHAPTER XIII.

Conspiracy of La Magione.

ARTICLE I. — Cesar accused before Louis XII.

Fear and discontent of the papal vassals . . . . .	353
The Pope and his Captain accused before Louis XII . . . . .	354
Alexander VI promises help to Louis XII against Spain . . . . .	356
Cesar received well by Louis XII . . . . .	356

ARTICLE II. — The Bentivoglios saved from ruin.

Preparations against the Bentivoglios of Bologna . . . . .	358
The Pope orders the Bentivoglios to leave Bologna . . . . .	359
The Bentivoglios create a public opinion against the Pope . . . . .	359
The Pope postpones action . . . . .	360
The Orsini refuse aid against the Bentivoglios . . . . .	361

ARTICLE III. — All the Pope's vassals conspire against him.

Conspiracy of La Magione . . . . .	363
The conspirators had the main power . . . . .	364
To gain time, the Orsini negotiate with the Pope . . . . .	365
The conspirators cause the revolt of the duchy of Urbino . . . . .	367
Cesar de Borgia requests help and gathers soldiers in Imola . . . . .	368
Michelletto defeated by the conspirators . . . . .	370
The rebels lose their opportunity . . . . .	370
Several expelled lords return . . . . .	371
The Pope much disturbed, protects Rome . . . . .	372
French aid arrives in Imola . . . . .	374

ARTICLE IV. — Cesar negotiates with the conspirators.

Cesar prefers negotiations to war . . . . .	375
The Orsini willing to negotiate, yet fight Cesar . . . . .	375
Cesar's proposals to Paulus Orsini . . . . .	376
Conditions finally accepted . . . . .	378
Guidobaldo of Urbino and Giovanni of Camerino exiles again . . . . .	378
The reconciliation not sincere . . . . .	379
Bentivoglio makes a separate agreement . . . . .	380

CHAPTER XIV.

Tragedy of Senigallia.

Cesar de Borgia departs from Imola with a large army . . . . .	383
The French auxiliaries leave Cesar . . . . .	384
The reconciled enemies propose the capture of Senigallia . . . . .	385
The governess of Senigallia guilty of rebellion . . . . .	385
Execution of Ramiro d'Orca . . . . .	385
Oliverotto da Fermo takes Senigallia . . . . .	387
Cesar requested to come and accept the fortress of Senigallia . . . . .	387
Cesar meets and arrests the conspirators . . . . .	388
He disperses the troops of Oliverotto and saves the city . . . . .	389
Oliverotto and Vitellozzo judged and put to death . . . . .	390
Cesar writes of the capture of his intending murderers . . . . .	391
Cesar congratulated by neighboring princes . . . . .	392
Cesar justified . . . . .	393

CHAPTER XV.

Events following upon the tragedy of Senigallia.

ARTICLE I. — Cardinal Orsini is imprisoned and dies.

Cesar de Borgia informs the Pope . . . . .	397
The Pope unaware of Cesar's designs on Senigallia . . . . .	398
The Pope detains cardinal Orsini and others . . . . .	399
Julius Orsini, the cardinal's brother, escapes . . . . .	401
Cardinal Orsini placed in Sant' Angelo . . . . .	402
The cardinal becomes ill, dies and is buried . . . . .	403
Cardinal Orsini died a natural death . . . . .	403

ARTICLE II. — Cagli, Citta di Castello and Perugia taken for the Pope.

After Senigallia Cesar takes Cagli . . . . .	406
The Vitelli flee to Perugia, and the people of Citta di Castello surrender to Cesar, who accepts for the Pope . . . . .	407
The Perugians give up their city to the Pope . . . . .	408
Pantasilea Baglione, made a captive, is liberated by order of the Pope . . . . .	409

ARTICLE III. — Trouble with Pandolfo Petrucci, lord of Siena.

Cesar wants Pandolfo to be expelled from Siena . . . . .	410
Cesar receives more cities for the Pope . . . . .	411
Cesar advances towards Siena and Petrucci prepares for defence. . . . .	411
Paulus and Franciscus Orsini put to death at Castel della Pieve. . . . .	412
The Pope sincerely negotiates with Pandolfo Petrucci . . . . .	413
Pandolfo urged by the people leaves Siena . . . . .	414
Pandolfo soon restored by Louis XII . . . . .	415

CHAPTER XVI.

Wars against the Orsini.

ARTICLE I. — Desultory campaign.

The Orsini and Savelli devastate the neighborhood of Rome. . . . .	417
Cesar arrives in Acquapendente and Viterbo. . . . .	419
The Pope issues an edict against the Orsini . . . . .	419

Cesar inactive, because of threats of Louis XII . . . . .	420
The papal condottieri take several places, but Bracciano is protected by Cesar . . . . .	420
Giangiordano Orsini refuses to exchange his territories for those of Jofre de Borgia . . . . .	421
Giangiordano loses places, but keeps Bracciano . . . . .	421
Cesar stays in Rome while his troops disband . . . . .	421
The count of Pitigliano, although treacherous, is saved . . . . .	422

ARTICLE II. — The war ends with the fall of Ceri.

Bracciano, Vicovaro and Ceri were Orsini's still . . . . .	423
Ceri very negligently besieged . . . . .	424
Ceri falls at last . . . . .	425
The conquered Orsini treated mercifully. . . . .	425
Cesar disobeys the Pope who orders the attack of Bracciano. . . . .	426
Sustained by Louis XII, Giangiordano makes a truce with the Pope. . . . .	427

CHAPTER XVII.

Divers subjects relating to pope Alexander's temporal administration.

The Pope bears the arrogance of Louis XII. but remains neutral between France and Spain . . . . .	429
The Pope offers to ally with Venice to save Italy . . . . .	429
Ferdinand of Spain wants Cesar de Borgia to have Tuscany and to be King . . . . .	431
Liberal offers of Louis XII. . . . .	431
Those offers misrepresented as ambitious designs of the Pope. . . . .	432
The Pope refuses the offers . . . . .	433
False accusations of the Borgia's ambition . . . . .	434
Praises could be expected from the people . . . . .	435
Cesar governs Romagna well. . . . .	436
Share of Alexander VI in the government of Romagna. . . . .	437
The supreme tribunal or Rota of Romagna. . . . .	438
The Pope visits his newly recovered territories . . . . .	439

CHAPTER XVIII.

Alexander VI promotes learning.

ARTICLE I. — He rebuilds the Roman " Sapienza ".

Pope Alexander VI promotes literature and science. . . . .	445
The learned Pope enjoys poetry. . . . .	445
Learned men called to Rome by the Pope. . . . .	466
The " Sodalitas Literatorum " . . . . .	447
The Pope assists young students . . . . .	448
Alexander VI rebuilds the Roman University. . . . .	449
To counteract the pagan Renaissance. . . . .	449
Sums paid for the new buildings . . . . .	451
Taxes on wine and honorary promotions to pay the professors. . . . .	452
The Pope facilitates the introduction of books. . . . .	454

ARTICLE II. — The Pope establishes or favors several other universities.

He orders the reform of the universities of Toledo and of Salamanca. . . . .	455
He establishes the university of Aberdeen. . . . .	456
He introduces Civil Law into the university of Vienna . . . . .	456
He introduces Civil Law into the university of Erfurt . . . . .	457
He establishes the university of Alcala de Henares . . . . .	457
He institutes the university of Valencia. . . . .	458
He founds the Universities of Frankfort and of Wittemberg. . . . .	459
He favors the university of Avignon. . . . .	459
He improves the university of Pisa. . . . .	459
He institutes a music and grammar school in Paris. . . . .	459
Artistic improvements made by Alexander VI. . . . .	460

CHAPTER XIX.

Alexander VI beautifies Rome.

ARTICLE I. — He restores several churches.

The Pope employing the greatest artists . . . . .	463
He builds St. Peter's portico . . . . .	463
He repairs the whole basilica and its approaches. . . . .	464
He builds the ceiling of Santa Maria Maggiore. . . . .	464
He restores the churches of St. John of Lateran, of St. James and of Sancti Apostoli . . . . .	465
He encourages the erection of other churches. . . . .	466

ARTICLE II. — He improves the Vatican palace.

Alexander VI completes the Belvedere . . . . .	468
He builds the " Torre Borgia " . . . . .	468
He orders a residence for his treasurer general. . . . .	469
He restores the vestry and makes various improvements. . . . .	469

ARTICLE III. — The Pope rebuilds the castle of Sant' Angelo.

He repairs the Leonine City walls, and erects the quarters of the papal guard. . . . .	470
He builds the elevated gallery to Castel Sant' Angelo. . . . .	471
He rebuilds the castle of Sant' Angelo . . . . .	472
He restores the castle struck by lightning . . . . .	474
Pinturicchio's historic frescoes at the castle. . . . .	475
The Pope provides Sant' Angelo with cannon and ammunition. . . . .	475

ARTICLE IV. — The Pope improves streets and aqueducts.

He repairs all the city walls and gates . . . . .	477
He rebuilds and repairs several bridges in Rome . . . . .	479
He widens the streets of Rome . . . . .	480
He builds the " Via recta ", now the " Borgo nuovo " . . . . .	481
He encourages building along the Via recta. . . . .	482
He restores fountains and aqueducts of Rome . . . . .	484
The monumental fountain of St. Peter's square. . . . .	484
Alexander VI encourages public festivities . . . . .	485
Improvements in cities of the Pontifical provinces. . . . .	486